

PORTUGAL

MADEIRA

Madeira is the only wine in the world that is deliberately heated and oxidised, and that is exactly what makes it almost indestructible. An open bottle keeps for months; a good nineteenth-century Madeira is still drinkable today. The four classic grapes run from dry to sweet: Sercial, Verdelho, Bual and Malvasia. What they share is that typical combination of high acidity with nuts, dried fruit and caramel. We have the largest Madeira selection in Belgium, with Barbeito, Blandy's and d'Oliveiras, from affordable young wines to colheitas decades old.

OVER DE PRODUCENT

This group brings together Blandy's, Leacock's, Cossart Gordon and Miles, and with them an impressive stock of old wines. Chris Blandy and winemaker Francisco Albuquerque make approachable, rounded Madeira with real depth.
